

Some water bottles are made out of heavy materials, and other ones are made out of cheap thin plastic. This leads to a problem of most water bottles either being too heavy or too light without a happy medium.